Masterplan for Zeropoint Technologies

The zeropoint or quantum vacuum turns the conventional world inside out. Normal everyday logic doesn't work. Up is down, more is less, dead is alive. Words matter more than numbers. In this area normal world views don't make sense. For example there is no Doppler shift. No sense of movement in the conventional sense. To prosper in this environment new economic structures are required. This view requires new mathematical systems to learning modalities. The Masterplan diagrams are a pictorial representation of the arrangement and priority of these structures. People are the primary resource and reference point, not space or time.

The directions of the energies of people through new structures in: mathematics, infrastructure, position translation, time and knowledge lead to better quality wealth creation than in geometrically organized civilizations. A high energy density zeropoint inverts the normal direction of exploitation. It is not the wheel that is of value but the hole in the centre. You don't move around in the world the world moves around you. Objects and space, once seen as dead, are teeming with life. In order to prosper you must slow down not speed up. The mathematics of the zeropoint is highly predictive so you don't strive to overcome nature, nature strives to overcome you.

To the bean counters of the world it means you can win at stochastic processes such, as financial markets or the weather. In energy production circuits based on zeropoint inspired architectures can run indefinitely. Optics can be used to order normal light. The wheel and the rocket can be replaced. Time can stand still. The process or learning can be one of self discovery guided by the environment. These changes can bring cost savings and quality of life improvements. The biggest hurdles are existing thought structures. The rewards are a more fulfilling life and sound sleep.
